INTRODUCTION

Some basic principles for SAP teams to keep in mind when reviewing and redesigning their information gathering process are:

- It is the right and the responsibility of the school district to continuously monitor the behavior of its students in order to provide a safe learning environment and to protect their health, safety, and welfare.

- The parental perspective on what may be contributing to their child's behavior and performance at school is essential to the information collection process and their input should be sought as early as possible.

- The collection of information from school staff and its retention and maintenance have implications for a school's records policies and procedures and these should be reviewed in light of the requirements of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), Pennsylvania State Board of Education Regulations on Pupil Records (Chapter 12), the Protection of Pupil Rights (PPRA), and the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA).

- Assisting the student and their family in overcoming the barriers to learning is the primary objective of SAP. This parameter should be used in determining the appropriateness of any observable information that is collected in the school setting and the accompanying information collection forms.

- Information may be shared with other staff and others within the school district that have a legitimate educational interest, but dissemination of the information to other school districts or outside agencies must comply with the parental consent requirements outlined in FERPA.

With the above parameters as a guide, a SAP team should be able to create an effective information collection and maintenance system. The templates offered within this document are not final products distributed as models by the Commonwealth Student Assistance Program. They are offered to help SAP teams develop their own information collection forms reflective of local school policy and procedures.

The following guidance should be helpful as teams work through this process:

- Review the enclosed templates and compare and contrast these to the forms now being used by your team. Faculty, staff, and parents need to be involved in the review and design process. The level of representation and involvement in the review, selection, and design by those who will use the forms is directly proportionate to the success of the overall process.

- During the review process, please consider school laws, and local, state, and federal regulations regarding school records, parents' rights, special education, etc.
If your team decides to create new items, the following rules should apply:
> use observable behaviors; and > be cautious of the use of statements requiring judgment; eliminate hearsay and innuendos.

Remember that the form is an information-gathering tool that might suggest a pattern of behavior. It is not a diagnostic tool!

Keep in mind that parents have the right to review all individual forms collected in this process, including the forms completed by teachers and staff. Because SAP records are student records, the maintenance of these forms is governed by school policy that is adopted by the school board.

Use the process prescribed by your school in reviewing/designing forms before they are adopted for use. This process may include administrative review, review by the school board, and/or review by the school's solicitor.

Create a brief explanation for the purpose and use of each form and inform staff, students, community agency personnel, and parents regarding their use.

As a team, periodically review the forms and their use and update as necessary. Solicit feedback from parents, faculty, and other staff.
